In loving memory

Al-Fatihah

Anómalos is a Greek word for anomalous which means “something that deviates from the norm”.

While anomalous can also mean as not in agreement with something and can therefore be unsatisfactory, it can however be an exciting new direction where art is concerned.

Hence, two artists from diverse artistic backgrounds, Shaliza Juanna Alfred & Zarina Abdullah, are featured in this Anómalos exhibition.

Both are different in developing their works.

Shaliza Juanna, who graduated with a Master in Fine Arts majoring in painting (Course Work) from UiTM Shah Alam, highlights the use of multiple techniques such as installation art, painting, drawing and sketching, printmaking, as well as collage and assemblage in her works.

At the same time, she is also particular about the visual aspect of her artworks and the stories behind it.

Shaliza loves gimmicks and exaggerates some parts of her artworks. “That is the key to grab people’s attention,” she said.

In one of her installation pieces titled “The Chronicles of the Virtues and The Vices”, she recreated and exaggerated the snake and ladder game by blowing up the size where the board is 6 feet x 6 feet while the snakes are measured more than 10 feet a piece.

Her works are about stories of the past, especially childhood and nostalgic moments and children’s characters. She used a lot of images that relate to her personal self and tried to make it similar to others as well.

“The visuals may be similar but the stories could be different. The most interesting part of the artworks is that we can share stories,” she said.

Meanwhile, Zarina is known for her trademark of using Salvador Dali as her subject to express elements of humanity.

Her artworks exude her honesty and sensitivity on humanity and the environment, often using iconography, humanity, figures, animals and nature as elements.

“I am not a warrior with a sword to fight with but an artist who fights war through art,” she said.

Noting that the society is deteriorating, she believes that through one can save or at least change the world through art.

It is evident that these two artists are in touch with their surroundings. Their imagination assists them in producing visual arts that record the current life scenarios.

They in turn hope that their artworks will inspire others from all walks of life and ages.
